Dear Mrs. Hindi

17 January 1934

I have this morning seen in The Times the news of your mother's passing and hasten to send you my condolences.

Her's was a ripe age and her life had been a full and useful one. Only those who knew anything of the quiet, less public life of your notable father could be aware of the help which your mother gave him in the work which made him famous.

So, as I remember him — always pleasantly for his kindly interest in me; sometimes with awe, because of his stupendous brain — I shall always remember your mother for her graciousness and an infinitude of tact in her guardianship of your father.

So, it seems, she fulfilled her destiny, and then started all over again with you and Lady Mackinder at Capri.

This is my tribute of homage to her and, I trust, may serve as a comfort to you who knew her worth much more than I.

Yours sincerely & sympathetically

W. Robert.

P.S. I hope the shock has not been too great for Lady Mackinder and that you are well.
