Thought for mistrature of Dermank.

This to Stead 2 days on so Home to Dermank.

The Stead 2 days on so Home to Dermank.

Tvedgårdvej 7, Oksbøl, 6430 Nordborg. Denmark 3.6.87

Dear Dinah,

Just a quick line to thank you very much for having me to stay earlier on in the week. I had a lovely time, it was so nice to get away from all the agro and memories and spend a

The journey back was pretty uneventful. For some reason the tubes weren't running from Hammersmith to Heathrow so I had to get a train to Acton Town and change there. I then waited for 1/2 hour in a queue in Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have booked into Terminal 2 only to find the should have been should have for 1/2 hour in a queue in Terminal 2 only to find that I should have booked into Terminal 1. That meant a long treck and another long wait at the check in desk at Terminal 1. That managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been managed to catch my train for the should have been my train for the should have and the children were waiting at the other end.

> I am now back at work working hard writing letters. I had a lovely letter from Francesca and also a letter from my godmother Margaret. I will get round to writing a letter to James within the next few days.

> The garden has grown enormously and quite a few vegetables have come up. I now have the task of planting out all my bedding plants which takes an age and kills my back.

> I think I will write to Jane rather than ring her up to find out how she is getting on. Poor thing I am afraid it will suddenly dawn on her one day that he is not coming back. I do hope she opens up to her friends and lets them help to comfort her.

> Well, Dinah thanks again for your hospitality. All the best and take care of yourself,

Love

Careliernow 31 nauried to John Perry. (Two years or more your fer than of She has 2 boys (845), speaks Donish + works translating. Les about to Learn Jaganero. a real charmer, wohing very like her mather, whose Nigel's sweet disposition.